

Affective Publics

Lecture Series

AFFECTIVE SOCIETIES

The series addresses the changing structure and nature of publics - both in different configurations of physical co-presence and in mediatized and digitally networked forms. The contributors to the series, who come from history, social anthropology, literary studies as well as media and communication studies, will consider how contemporary concepts of the public sphere must be re-formulated in order to grasp the emerging complexity of current publics and think about the role of affects and emotions in their very formation.

Steffi de Jong, University of Cologne:
Witness Auschwitz? How VR is changing
Holocaust memory

15th April 06.00-08.00 pm

Radhika Gajjala, Bowling Green State University:
Gendered Indian Digital Publics - Labor and Affect

29th April 06.00-08.00 pm

Ulla Berg, Rutgers School of Art and Sciences:
The Affect of Deportation

3rd June 06.00-08.00 pm

Subarno Chattarji, University of Delhi:
"GOOKS, go home!" -Vietnamese in the United States

25th June 09.30-11.00 am

Tobias Matzner, Paderborn University: Understanding the affect of algorithmic publics

15th July 06.00-08.00 pm

For further information please visit our website or scan the QR-Code.